It s time to end this suit. From the beginning it was obvious that this suit was brought about by a few companies that could not compete on a level playing field with Microsoft. So they have tried to change the rules to inhibit inovation and creativity so their inferior products would be able to compete. As an end user of software products I have no allegiance to any particular company. If Sun Novell and the others can make a better product I will buy it. If they can not I will not. I don t need the government telling me what products I should buy or supporting inferior products just because they have many congressmen and attorney generals backing them in their individual states. In Utah (a Novell owned state) it is obvious the only reason they are pursuing this case is to further the profits of Novell not the pursuit of justice. If Sun and Novell would put as much effort in making better products as they have done in trying to bring down Microsoft they may have already produced a better product that clearly outsells Microsoft.
